

LOYD GEORGE APPREHENSIVE OVER MEETING

Three Obstacles Confront Premier In Disarmament Conference.

DOUBT EXPRESSED

Failure of Irish Peace Plans Would Hurt Cause Of Meeting.

London, July 23.—Premier Lloyd George is becoming apprehensive over the troublesome complications which are besetting the arrangements for the proposed Washington conference on disarmament and far east issues, his friends revealed today.

The premier was quoted as saying to an intimate:

"I almost wish I had never suggested a conference."

Lloyd George's statement is explained by the fact that while the public invitation to the powers came from President Harding, it is generally understood that Great Britain strongly urged the United States to take the initiative in calling the international meeting.

The premier intensely wishes the conference to be held and also he wishes to participate personally. Apart from sincerely believing that disarmament is possible, he realizes that it would be the biggest personal triumph he has ever achieved and would assure him an unlimited term of power.

But three obstacles confront the premier.

1.—Premier Hughes of Australia is insisting upon Austrian representation in the Pacific discussion and coupled with this is the fact that Hughes soon will be turned to Australia and is unable to wait until autumn for the conference. Consequently the Australian premier is urging an immediate meeting in London. Premier Meighan of Canada, is supporting his Australian colleague Lloyd George favored their suggestion to the extent of putting the proposal directly up to George Harvey, the American ambassador. No response has yet arrived from Washington and Lloyd George is beginning to fear that there is no chance for a preliminary conference in London.

Useless to Go

2.—Premier Lloyd George realizes it is useless for him to go to the United States unless there is an Irish settlement in the meantime. He is becoming pessimistic on account of the attitude of Ulster in the Irish peace negotiations.

3.—Leaders of the coalition party resent the possible absence of Lloyd George from England, fearing that Austen Chamberlain would be unable to hold the coalition party together in his absence.

These three factors are telling heavily against Lloyd George's personal desires and doubt is expressed as to whether he can overcome them.

The London Times understands that the dominion premiers have received from Washington a reply to their query as to whether they may have representation at the conference, but no hazard was made as to the contents.

In connection with Premier Lloyd George's statement in commons that Great Britain would continue the construction of warships, the Daily Mail declared today that the cabinet supports the premier's view and that it favors the building of capital ships and a continuation of the naval program.

For several years Britain will construct big warships at the rate of three or four a year, according to the Daily Mail's version of the ministerial decision.

The Daily Mail went on to say however, that this decision would be subject to any treaty with Japan and America for reduction of armaments. Admiral Beatty, first seelord of the admiralty and Winston Churchill, secretary of state for colonies, had both recommended big ship construction to the imperial naval committee which in turn made a recommendation to the cabinet that the construction of both big and little ships continue.

JIM BARNES WINS GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

Washington, July 23.—Playing as fine a two-days' session of golf as the most pessimistic critic of the ancient and honorable game could desire, James M. Barnes of the Pelham Bay, N. Y., Country Club, won the open national championship on the course of the Columbia Country Club here late yesterday, with a score of 289 strokes for 72 holes.

Nine strokes in his wake came Walter Hagen, of New York, champion in 1919, and Fred McLeod, professional of the local course, each with a score of 298.

National amateur champion, Charles "Chick" Evans, Jr., of the Edgewater Club of Chicago, was fourth with 302 the first amateur of the original score or more of entrants to finish. Another amateur of national golfing prominence tied in the next group of three in the person of Robert T. (Bob) Jones of Atlanta, whose score of 303 placed him alongside his professional, Alex Smith, of New London, and Emmett French of Youngstown, Ohio.

GOVERNOR DEFIES ARREST FOLLOWING HIS INDICTMENT

Chicago, July 23.—A frantic search is on today for the immunity waivers supposed to have been signed by Eddie Cicotte, Claude Williams and Joe Jackson, three of the former White Sox ball players who are on trial for conspiracy to throw the 1919 world's series to Cincinnati, when they made their alleged confessions before the grand jury which indicted them. The waivers are vital as Judge Hugo Friend has ruled that the confessions may be admitted as evidence if it can be established they were offered voluntarily.

Discovery that the documents had disappeared was made when Attorney General Cummings sought to introduce the confessions. Defense counsel objected and the state was unable to produce the waivers it declared the indicted players had signed.

In an attempt to prove the confessions voluntary, Harvey L. Replogle, a former assistant state attorney, who conducted the investigation before the grand jury, was called as a witness. Replogle testified that the confessions were made without promises of immunity.

The waivers, attorneys claim were last seen in the files of the state's attorney's office. It is believed they were stolen.

Judge Friend is expected to make a final ruling on Monday as to the admission of the confessions as evidence.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR PEACE IN IRELAND NOW MARK TIME

Next Move Up To Ireland—Lloyd-George Asked to Make Statement.

London, July 23.—Peace negotiations between England and Ireland marked time today. The next move is up to Ireland. The Ulster unionists requested Premier Lloyd George to make a statement in the house of commons on Monday regarding the Irish peace situation, but it is doubtful if he accedes unless a formal communication has been received from Eamonn DeValera in the meantime.

According to the Daily Mail, the only rock upon which the negotiations are sticking is the question of representation in any Irish government that may be established.

The London Times understands that the Sinn Feiners relinquished their demand for a republic and that this phase of the situation no longer plays any part in the negotiations.

MOTOR BUS LINES START IN MARIETTA

Marietta, July 23.—Motor bus lines were placed in operation here today as a result of partial suspension of service by the local traction company on the plea of financial loss in operating the city lines. The traction company has been charging seven cents fare, while the bus lines have established a five cent rate.

City council today ordered the railway company to tear up all lines over which service has been suspended.

U. S. WANTS ONLY ONE CONFERENCE

Washington, July 23.—The United States desires but one conference, and that to be held in Washington as speedily as possible.

This is the attitude of the administration toward informal suggestions that a "preliminary" conference is necessary to the launching of the international meeting on disarmament and the Far East situation, scheduled for next fall.

At the same time it was stated emphatically that the United States has no intention of increasing or decreasing the membership of the conference, nor will it accede to any propositions for delay.

GREEKS ADVANCING WITH HEAVY LOSSES

London, July 23.—The Turkish cabinet at an extraordinary session in Constantinople discussed the advisability of appealing to the allied powers to intervene in Anatolia to stop the war between the Turkish nationalists and the Greeks, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Constantinople today.

The Greeks have advanced 20 miles eastward from Eski-Sheur, but sustained five thousand casualties in the fighting in that sector of the battle front.

MISSING WAIVERS OBJECT OF SEARCH IN BASE BALL CASE

Admission of Confessions as Evidence Depends on Question of Immunity SAID TO BE VITAL

Papers Are Believed To Have Been Stolen From State's Attorneys

Chicago, July 23.—A frantic search is on today for the immunity waivers supposed to have been signed by Eddie Cicotte, Claude Williams and Joe Jackson, three of the former White Sox ball players who are on trial for conspiracy to throw the 1919 world's series to Cincinnati, when they made their alleged confessions before the grand jury which indicted them. The waivers are vital as Judge Hugo Friend has ruled that the confessions may be admitted as evidence if it can be established they were offered voluntarily.

In an attempt to prove the confessions voluntary, Harvey L. Replogle, a former assistant state attorney, who conducted the investigation before the grand jury, was called as a witness. Replogle testified that the confessions were made without promises of immunity.

The waivers, attorneys claim were last seen in the files of the state's attorney's office. It is believed they were stolen.

Judge Friend is expected to make a final ruling on Monday as to the admission of the confessions as evidence.

CHARGES FOREIGN INTERESTS CAUSED SEIZURE OF SHIPS

Action Taken in Default Of Rentals Will Be Contested.

New York, July 23.—Charges that foreign interests prompted the drastic seizure by the shipping board of five U. S. Mail Steamship company liners, were made today by E. A. Quarles, official of the company.

The action said Quarles "will be fought to the last ditch."

Five liners, the George Washington, the George Washington, the George Washington, the George Washington, the George Washington, were guarded by deputy U. S. marshals today following their seizure for failure of the line to pay rentals amounting to $400,000.

"Because of our absolute Americanism," charges Quarles, "foreign interests have tried through propaganda, spies and lobbying to thwart every step we have taken."

"We feel confident that the board will rescind its action when the facts are known."

AGED MAN ARRESTED SATURDAY ON CHARGE OF ATTACKING GIRL

On a warrant charging contributing to the delinquency of a minor, William Hite, 74, South Whiteman Street, painter and paper hanger, was arrested by Chief of Police M. E. Graham and Probation Officer J. E. Watts, at two o'clock Saturday afternoon, at the Dugan cafe, on North Whiteman street.

Arraigned shortly afterward before Police Judge E. Dawson Smith Saturday afternoon Hite entered a plea of not guilty to the charge and his bond was fixed at $1,000 for his appearance in Police Court next week. Bond was furnished by M. J. Dugan. Hite will probably be turned over to Juvenile Court authorities, on the charge, which officials say is a serious one.

The charge is based on accusations of Eva Harrison, 13, daughter of William Harrison Trumbull street, who claimed that the aged man had attacked her on seven or eight specific occasions in the last few weeks. According to the story told police by the girl, Hite papered at their house a year ago, and recently had again been there doing some work. It is alleged he frequently called on her father at the house. The girl keeps house for her father and several other children in the family.

The case came to the attention of Juvenile Court authorities several days ago, and they immediately called in the police, the arrest being made after the officers questioned the girl Saturday afternoon. According to officials she told a morbid story of mistreatment.

BIDS FOR ROAD IN THIS COUNTY UNDER ESTIMATE

Less Than $25,000 Per Mile for 6.9 Miles Of Jamestown Cedarville Pike ARE UNDER ESTIMATE

Cincinnati Firm Says If Given Contract, Work Will Begin at Once

The low bid on the road contract work in Greene county is $43,970 under the estimated cost of the work.

This developed, Friday in Columbus, when the most spirited competition in years marked the opening of bids on 53 contracts in various sections of the state. More than 400 bids were received and the estimated cost of $4,035,732.69 was cut heavily as the result of the keen desire of contractors to obtain the jobs.

The lowest among 16 received on the 6.9 mile stretch of road on the Jamestown-Cedarville pike, Section B, No. 472 in Greene county, were D. W. Botkin & Son, Columbus, bituminous macadam (tar) was for $174,492.22; T. D. Van Camp, Cincinnati, bituminous macadam (asphalt) was for 170,933.82. The estimated cost of the work, county commissioner said was $214,904.

The bid of Van Camp is $515.71 per mile cheaper than that of D. W. Botkin & Son. If accepted it will mean an outlay of $24,773 per mile.

C. H. Knowlton, representative of the Cincinnati company was in Xenia Saturday, conferring with the county commissioners, and before leaving said that he was confident the commissioners would recommend that the highway department accept the bid of his company. If this is done, he said work will be started immediately and by fall the water bound base would be laid and would be in shape for travel during the winter. The top will be completed in the spring.

One bid was received on the bridge in Newark, Montgomery county for $7,342.

CARPENTIER SAYS HE WILL TRY AGAIN

Paris, July 23.—Georges Carpentier the defeated heavyweight arrived from New York today and announced that he hoped to fight Jack Dempsey again next year for the world title. Carpentier was given a rousing ovation. In response to the cheers of the crowd he made a speech saying:

"My friends I hope next year to be in condition to defeat Dempsey."

The first action of the popular pugilist was to kiss his infant daughter then he embraced and kissed his wife.

SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKS IN CHARGE OF FIRM'S AFFAIRS

Owners Request Action Following Cashier's Disappearance

Columbus, July 23.—H. E. Scott, Superintendent of banks, today took charge of the affairs of the Marshfield Bank, New Marshfield, Athens county, a private bank, at the request of the owners of the institution. The request was made by the owners because of the disappearance of the cashier, William Sturgill.

An examination is now being made by the department to determine the condition of the bank. Sturgill disappeared early this morning, leaving a note to his wife, saying he had to get out.

ILLINOIS SCANDAL IN QUIESCENT STATE

Springfield, Ill., July 23.—Illinois scandal involving the alleged misuse of upwards of $4,000,000 in state interest money was mostly a topic for discussion today. No developments of any kind were expected until next Tuesday when Judge Smith will reconvene court.

The bonds of Lieut. Gov. Sterling and Vernon Curtis, Grant Park banker fixed at $50,000 each have been filed with the court. The next and most important step, that of ruling on the question of Governor Small's liability to arrest, will not be decided until next week.

CRIMSON AND BLUE MEET THE ENGLISH

Cambridge, Mass., July 23.—It was America versus Britain at Harvard stadium today when the joint Harvard-Yale team met on this county's greatest cinder path to contest athletic supremacy with Oxford and Cambridge universities of England.

For the day, two ancient intense rivalries were forgotten. The Crimson and the Blue fought under one standard as did the invaders who seldom did so at home.

Each team had about an even chance for victory.

LATIN-AMERICA DEEPLY INTERESTED IN HARDING'S DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE

None of These Nations Has Made Representations To United States Seeking Seat at Table—Disarmament Distinctly Popular in Mexico.

Washington, July 23.—Although Latin-America, and those nations which border on the Pacific area are displaying the keenest interest in President Harding's disarmament and far eastern conference, not one of these nations has yet made representations to the United States seeking a seat at the conference table, it was learned at the state department today.

Practically every Latin-American ambassador and minister who has called at the state department since announcement was made of the president's plan it was learned today has expressed deep interest in the conference and warm hopes for its success.

No secret is made of the fact that virtually all the Latin-American government would be highly pleased to receive an invitation to participate but so far there has been little or no disposition to take offense because they were not included.

There is a general feeling among the republics to the south, diplomats stated, that this is essentially a conference of the great powers and while they will watch the proceedings closely, they appreciate the contention of Secretary Hughes that the conference must necessarily be limited, and they have not the slightest disposition to embarrass the state department in the course he has seen fit to take.

Disarmament is distinctly popular in Mexico, Central and South America at the present time and there can be no doubt of the willingness of nations included in these groups to follow the lead of the United States in this direction. President Obregon is rapidly reducing the Mexican army and the military establishment is one of the chief arguments advanced in favor of the union of central American republics.

Ambassador Mathieu of Chile, who was at one time minister of war in the Chilean government, expressed himself as heartily in sympathy with the movement initiated by President Harding and pointed out that Chile and Argentina are pioneers in the armament limitation movement, having signed an agreement years ago, under the terms of which they not only cancelled contracts for warships, but also dismantled war vessels already in commission. Ambassador Pezet of Peru also is in full accord with the proposal for reducing armies and navies.

Senor Tellez, charge d'affaires of the Mexican embassy, stated there is widespread interest in disarmament in Mexico.

Latin-American nations bordering on the Pacific have manifested no inclination to insist upon representation in the conference because of their positive interest in the discussion of Pacific questions.

INDICATIONS POINT TO ACCEPTANCE BY JAPAN MINUS TIES

National Opinion Being Rapidly Consolidated In Country.

Tokio, July 22.—(Delayed)—The work of selecting Japanese delegates to the disarmament and far east conference in Washington and the task of consolidating Japanese national opinion towards the proposed meeting is proceeding. Indications are that Japan will enter the conference unreservedly.

The tension in public opinion and in the press has been relieved by an American cablegram to the Nichi Nichi saying that Secretary of State Hughes has promised Baron Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador at Washington that provided the Shantung and Yap issues were settled in advance they will not be brought up at the far east conference.

A section of the press and some prominent Japanese personages advise Japan to evacuate the Shantung railway in China and Saghalien in Siberia, so that Japan can go into the conference with clean hands.

The advisory council to the foreign office is considering the conference issue almost daily.

TYPHOID CLAIMS FIRST VICTIM HERE

Typoid fever, which has invaded several homes in the county, claimed its first victim Thursday evening when Terrie Smith, 21, succumbed to the disease at his home in Spring Valley.

The young man contracted the gripe about a month ago, typhoid fever developing from the first disease, it is thought. No cause for the presence of typhoid is ascribed by the family.

Mr. Smith was just 21 years of age. He had moved to Spring Valley with his parents a few years ago from a farm near Waynesville, where they formerly lived. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Smith. One brother died when two years of age and there are no other children.

Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at one o'clock at the late home in Spring Valley and burial will be made at the Middle Run Church.

PRESIDENT WILL BECOME CAMPER FOR SHORT TIME

Harding Heads Week End Party to Wilds of Maryland.

WILL JOIN OTHERS

Firestone, Edison and Ford Also Among Visitors to Licking Creek.

Washington, July 23.—Warren G. Harding laid aside the cares and burdens of the president of the United States and became a tourist camper bent on a week end excursion.

Garbed in rough tweeds, and with vacation paraphernalia packed in his touring car, the president left the White House at 9:30 A.M. at the head of a camping caravan, bound for Peckinville, Md., where the chief executive will join the Firestone-Edison-Ford camping party.

The presidential camping party was incomplete for Mrs. Harding, who is the constant companion of the president did not make the trip. For several days the "first lady" has been slightly indisposed and upon the advice of Brig. Gen. Sawyer, the White House physician, she remained in Washington. General Sawyer and Secretary George Christian, the usual secret service men and a flock of newspaper correspondents made up the presidential party.

Peckinville which is hardly more than a post office and general store in the Blue Ridge hills, will be reached about noon. Just in time, the president hopes for a real camp lunch and he is ready to munch bacon from his fingers.

The camp where the chief executive will spend the next 24 hours is on the banks of Licking creek about 17 miles from Hagerstown, Md.

Lurid tales of the abounding fish in Licking Creek have reached the president's ears and this afternoon he plans to sit in solid comfort on the banks of these well-press agitated waters and "just fish."

It will be the first time since Grover Cleveland left the White House that there has been an angling president.

Tonight the president will sleep in the open sheltered by a reformed army tent.

The famous Firestone-Edison-Ford camp fire will be burning and it is expected that the campfire circle will hold forth until a late hour tonight but there will be only stories and no serious discussion of the great problems of the day if the president has his way.

The camp to which the president is going is no ordinary roadside gypsy home. It is a camp where there are twenty tents pitched in the camp and these are augmented by specially built camping cars, which harbor many of the comforts of home.

The presidential digestion will be well guarded for there are two real chefs, white caps and all attached to the party in addition there is a laboratory expert from the Ford factory who inspects water and other things.

NEW TAX BILL TO REQUIRE 4 BILLIONS

Washington, July 23.—The house ways and means committee will set about tax revision with the idea of raising $4,000,000,000 in revenue, exclusive of postal receipts, in the next year. Chairman Fordney said last night, after he, with other Republican members of the committee, had conferred at length with Secretary Mellon on the general subject of taxation. The amount required is the same as had been raised by the present law and shows no hope, therefore, of a reduction in the gross amount needed.

The government's requirements will be met, however, in a slightly different manner than under the present law, the chairman said. Many changes are proposed, in the hope of readjusting the burden in a way that will encourage commerce and industry and thereby increase the revenues according to Mr. Fordney.

SEIZE SHIPLOAD OF BOOZE DURING SMUGGLING PARTY

Prominent New Haven Persons Said to Be Implicated.

New Haven, Conn., July 23.—A score of police in charge of Chief of Police Smith early today seized a shipload of booze, which was being smuggled ashore at Light House Point and arrested a dozen or more men who were engaged in handling the liquor.

Prominent New Haven persons are said to be implicated in the affair by reason of ownership in vessel and cargo. The amount of booze hauled to police headquarters in trucks is valued at approximately $50,000. The accused were locked up. The ship is now being brought to the city docks where the remainder of the cargo will be unloaded.

New Haven, Conn., July 23.—Thirty policemen, heavily armed, swooped down on the water front here this morning, seized a shipload of booze and arrested 18 men who were unloading it, among whom were several prominent New Haven business men.

The precious cargo, consisting of hundreds of cases of gin, Scotch whiskey and champagne, was being transferred from the sloop to a fleet of trucks when the police arrived.

Among those arrested were J. Harnar, well known sportsman and business man, P. P. Shier, a druggist of Westville; Braxton Messick, Joseph Miller, Maxwell Bruder, Floyd O'Connor and David Cheriens. All were locked up.

FRENCH DIVISION SENT TO SILESIA

Paris, July 23.—In the face of British opposition to the sending of more allied troops into Upper Silesia, a whole French division is under orders from Marshal Poch, today, to leave for Upper Silesia at once.

It was expected that they would entrain during the day. The division is upon a complete war footing.

ROLLING BARS SHOWS AT CURB IN NEW YORK

New York, July 23.—"Hooch" was being peddled at fifty cents a throw from the first rolling bar now in captivity to make his appearance here early today. Police on duty around 68th street noticed the magnetic effect of a limousine pulled up against the curb on a crown of sailors and others who went drifting out of a neighboring dance hall and over to the car. Upon investigating they found the elements had been selling so called whiskey from their rolling saloon.

PHELPS OF FINDLAY
AGAIN ON WARPATH
Columbus, O., July 23.—George H. Phelps, Findlay lawyer, who, in the early 90's gained fame as a foe of Standard Oil, today filed in supreme court a petition seeking to restrain the Aetna Insurance Company from issuing policies to automobile owners indemnifying them against suits for death or injury to person caused by their machines. Phelps contends that such policies are against public policy and violate the laws of the state.

The action is in the form of a mandamus against B. V. Gearhart, superintendent of insurance and he asks that licenses of all such companies be revoked. It is an amendment to an action heretofore brought by him in which he sought to prevent insurance companies from indemnifying physicians and surgeons for malpractice or mistakes.

Officials at the Xenia Country Club Friday evening fixed the positions of players in the tournament Wednesday, which resulted in a number of tie positions and awarded the prizes.

JAIL DELIVERY STOPPED
Sistersville, W. Va., July 23.—An attempted jail delivery by twelve prisoners in the Wetzel county jail here, was frustrated early today when bricks were seen to be loosened in the rear wall of the structure by a passerby. When officials made an investigation they found that only one column of brick remained between the men and liberty. Most of the prisoners were held for violation of the liquor laws.

STRAW AND HAY BURN IN BLAZE SATURDAY

Sparks from the threshing machine are thought to have been the cause of a fire on the farm of Elmer Hetzel, on the Jamestown pike, that destroyed a large quantity of straw and hay, and the fence surrounding the crops, about nine thirty Saturday morning.

The fire was discovered in the straw pile, by a passerby, who called the attention of the workmen in the field to the blaze. The roof of the barn, which was situated near the straw pile caught but was extinguished by a bucket brigade formed among the farm hands.

The city fire department was called, but the blaze was practically extinguished upon their arrival. All the property destroyed by the blaze was insured, according to Mr. Hetzel.

SAYS DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE SHOULD BE HELD BEFORE FALL

Washington, July 23.—The United States is of the opinion that President Harding's disarmament conference should be held not later than November if possible and this view has been informally communicated to Great Britain, it was stated at the White House today.

Although the U. S. has had no formal proposal from Great Britain for the postponement of the conference this government has been made acquainted with the view of the dominion premiers of Great Britain which favors postponement until spring.

The United States has stated explicitly in an informal communication its reasons for desiring an early meeting.

The question of the exact date of the parley has been taken up with other invited nations but definite action has been delayed by failure of Japan to announce her unreserved acceptance which is expected shortly.

DRY SPELL PLAYS HAVOC WITH CROPS IN GREENE COUNTY; WHEAT AT YIELD SUBNORMAL

With threshing in Greene County practically completed with the exception of a few small patches, a variance in the yield from three bushels to 25 bushels to the acre of wheat, is being reported.

Extremely hot weather, which matured the wheat too soon, blighted the hopes of farmers earlier in the season, that the harvest would be a record one. With the wheat heading up rapidly, it was believed, early, that with proper weather conditions the yield would surpass the most optimistic expectations.

The long, hot dry spell, that matured the wheat too rapidly, dispelled all such hopes, according to prominent Greene county farmers. As the grain began to "turn" before harvesting time, it was noticed that the dry spell had taken its toll in small grains and unfilled heads. In many instances three rows out of five in a head of wheat showed the results of the unfavorable weather conditions.

Despite these conditions, the report of harvests from various parts of the county, show that in some places, and with some brands of wheat the yield surpassed expectations. However it is the belief of farmers, that unnaturally small yields in some parts of the county, will bring down the average to considerably below what is called a normal yield in Greene County.

In the better sections, an 18 to 20 bushel yield was harvested, attaining towards a normal harvest. In this county a 20-bushel yield is considered average and this yield was obtained in some sections. In many places, reports show that the yield reached below this level by many bushels however and in some particular cases fell as low as three bushels to the acre. These cases it is believed are isolated and were brought about by peculiarly unfavorable conditions.

So far the harvest of Albert Bickett of Xenia township, east of Xenia, bids fair to set a record on the county yield for the year. Mr. Bickett harvested 25 bushels to the acre, using Trumbull wheat, one of three brands recommended by County Agent Ford S. Prince of the Greene County Farm Bureau, basing his recommendation on experiments conducted at the Ohio Experimental farm at Wooster.

On these tests, the Bureau has been recommending the use of Portage, Gladding and Trumbull wheat for this section. Trumbull, it is believed, being especially adaptable. The yield attained by Mr. Bickett, showing a well-filled head and heavy grain, shows that the brand, especially this season was unusually good.

Oats, naturally, suffered with the wheat this season, the same conditions tending to hinder the crops in the same proportions. Greene, however, has never been a big oats county.

NO TIME FOR THE DIFFUSION OF POISON GAS.

One of the sure ways of creating bad faith and suspicion and breeding certain failure in any kind of negotiation is to begin by imputing bad faith and crooked intent and inferring hypocrisy and worse on the part of one or all of the parties interested. This is a canker that will blight the very roots.

For some time the New York World has rendered valuable service to the cause of disarmament. It supported the Borah amendment and insisted that a conference be called.

Hardly had the President acted, and the formal statement of the American State Department had no more than been received in London, Paris, Rome, Tokio and Peking, when the World began sneering, snarling and criticizing. The ostensible reason for this curious action on the part of an avowed friend of disarmament is the President's inclusion of the situation in the Pacific and in the Far East as subjects that may be discussed. While there is a general agreement that these subjects are interwoven with disarmament, the World became convinced, overnight, that all is lost if they are brought in.

Or is it because of these things that the World is sure that the conference will fail? Suspicion grows that the World might have preferred to see the President wait a while longer before acting. The inactivity of the Administration on disarmament was making a beautiful target.

Poison gas attacks directed against the movement come with queer grace from any friend, any genuine friend, of disarmament. There will be criticism and attacks in plenty from the avowed enemies of limitation. So much was foreseen. Its secret enemies are legion and will be active to the end. The surprising thing is that one of its sworn friends should turn suddenly and upon reason of doubtful and unproved value.—Public Ledger.

NINETEEN DAYS OF DAWES.

Nineteen days after Charles G. Dawes, Director of the Budget, took off his coat and waded in he announced that savings amounting to $112,512,628.32 will be effected this current fiscal year, if the various departments will follow the plans as laid down.

We have known public officials who would have no more than chosen a stenographer, picked the coolest spot in the office and interviewed the chief clerk in nineteen days. This dynamo out of Chicago has shown the way to save the American taxpayer something like six million dollars for every day that he has been on the job.

"Helan Maria" Dawes is living up to his advance notices. There has been a rattling of dry bones in the valley of Washington since he came from the West. Thus far he seems to have proceeded without stirring up any grave Administration feuds, and he is well along on the job.—Exchange.

THE MYSTERY OF THE GAS METER.

Who hasn't wondered what happens inside the gas meter?

If you could see inside a meter you would simply see a bellows, like the blacksmiths use, made of leather (this is called a "drum") and then several queer-looking levers and some gears, and then a little device that prevents the wheels from running backwards. It is this little catch that makes the "click" you hear.

The "drum" expands and contracts as the gas fills it and as it is forced out into your appliances. After the gas bag is full it can only be emptied into your house lines—and these are filled with gas until you use it in an appliance or through a leak somewhere in your house lines. The gas cannot go back into the gas company's lines.

A gas meter is a very simple measuring device—probably the most accurate measuring device known, and if you do not like the clicking sound, just try using less gas. Study the methods now being advocated to save gas.

You do not please anyone when you waste gas—not even the gas company, because the gas company folks can now sell all the gas they can get. They are asking patrons to help them to give good gas service to a great number.

Read your own meter. That helps you to be interested in saving gas.

NATURE AN UNTIRED TEACHER.

Just as a mirror gives back your image, so do the plants, leaves, clouds, storms, the sunrise and sunset, speak daily to our eyes, ears and senses some helpful message, if we care to take it.

Every rock the basis of strength, a blossoming tree, perfumed flower, withered leaf, broken limbs in the forest after a stormy night, have suggestions for us for our profit and pleasure. Nature as well as art is untiring teacher.

This fourteen-story storage magazine of the world's confessions is a vast school to many who care to study it.

JOHN WANAMAKER.

GREEN OLD AGE

So live that when your head is gray, and you are bent and tired, you're fixed to throw your tools away, and have the rest desired, and let the young men bale the hay, for which they have been hired. Like many other ancient men, I threw my tools aside; and then I picked them up again—I can't be satisfied with resting, rusting in my den, while toilers round me stride. But if I had to buckle down in these, my wintry years, to earn the shilling and the crown, I'd earn the same in tears, and on my brow a dismal frown would reach back to my ears. But I could quit my job tonight, and ply my harp no more, and live in indolence, all right, on coin I saved of yore; and knowing this, with much delight, I do my daily chore. There's nothing sadder, I maintain, than old men making tracks, by stark need driven, through the rain, to toil with aching backs, until they die beneath the strain, and in the grave relax. I work by day, burn midnight gas, and leave a trail of smoke, but I don't need to put up grass, and so the job's a joke; if I were forced to earn the brass, how bitterly I'd creak! Oh, I could sit and chew my thumbs, if that were my desire; but when for me the summons comes, I'll still be at my lyre; you'll hear its tinkling tummy-tums, played like a house afire.

AN EDITORIAL ON ADVERTISING

While business readjustment and declining prices have their ultimate advantages to the public in lower prices and more stable conditions, there are still possible dangers worth heeding.

Right now "price" is the big consideration.

Jobbers, merchants and the public are buying their requirements primarily on the price basis.

A declining market always brings price to the front and makes it the foremost consideration in business transactions.

The fact that prices are the overwhelming consideration naturally influence manufacturers as well. The price consideration reflects back to them to such an extent that they are compelled, in order to do business, to cut their costs to the bone, reduce their profits to a minimum and to effect economies wherever possible.

This is a good thing if it is not overdone. But the trouble is that it is and will continue for a while to be greatly overdone.

Manufacturers who make products not intended to be advertised over their own name or sold over the guarantee of a most reputable guaranty can skip in the making of their wares and cut costs below what they should be and get away with it.

The result, even though it might not be immediately noticeable in the product, is a decided lowering of quality.

Quality is sacrificed in order to meet the demand for extremely low prices.

Such merchandise, that does not bear a manufacturer's own trade name or a reliable merchants guarantee, is very likely in these times to be of far lower quality than is the case when times are normal.

That sort of manufacturer can get by with it because he does not assume responsibility to the public for his product.

He makes goods that do not bear his name and therefore the public cannot blame him if, after they have purchased, they find the goods of inferior quality.

On the other hand, a manufacturer or a merchant who brands his goods with his own trade name and who has been and is advertising them to the public, assumes the full responsibility for the quality of his goods to such an extent that he dare not so skimp in manufacturing as to seriously affect quality.

To do so would be suicide. If any manufacturer of a well-known, well advertised product were to materially lower the quality, when the public detected it, the thing would act like a boomerang. Instead of having public good will he would have public ill will and it would take years to overcome what might be done in six months.

Therefore, it is to your interest in these times more than any other time, to buy merchandise of known quality and value.

In these times you can rely upon such merchandise far more than you can any other. You will know that you are getting quality, that, if the cost has been lowered, it is not because quality has been sacrificed.

No matter whether it is a suit of clothes, a fountain pen, a phonograph or a breakfast food, the eternal vigilance that marks the manufacture of advertised brands must continue and is continuing.

Purchasing advertised brands is today a greater safeguard and assurance of quality than ever before. You can buy such goods knowing that, to be right, whereas with other goods you cannot be sure that they have not been skimmed and cut and weakened in the process of manufacturing in order to meet the lower price demand.

And because this is true it will pay you—the reader—to follow advertising closely and constantly. It is a duty you owe yourself—a duty you owe your home.

Styles BY LENORE

The simple charm of this lovely crepe frock looks innocent of deception. Nevertheless it is capable of the utmost two-facedness for it may start the day as an unpretentious chemise frock, and end the evening as a finished dance frock. This it does by the simple expedient of tying about the waist a chiffon apron trimmed with flat roses of the same material as that of the frock, or of chiffon, and gathered on a narrow ribbon whose long ends tie into fluttering loops behind. A hint, this, for the brief journey when one's baggage is limited, or even at home when one needs to restrict the wardrobe only to the absolutely necessary. Gray, white or black are the colors to consider for this model.

PATTERN NO. 25
A pattern for the above model (No. 25) can be obtained in sizes 34, 36, 38 or 44, by sending to Lenore & West 40th street, New York City, your name, address, the number of this pattern and the size required, and 25 cents in postage stamps. Be sure to keep this newspaper clipping of the sketch and description of the garment to use as a working model when the pattern reaches you—which will be within two weeks' time.—The Editor.

PARTY VISITS HOME OF NOTED AUTHOR IN GREENE COUNTY

The house, which William Dean Howells, one of the foremost authors in American literature, called home, when he resided in this county years ago was visited Friday morning by a party of local people and two members of the Chautauqua now appearing in Xenia.

In the party were Dr. W. A. Galloway, Mrs. H. H. Eavey, Miss Elizabeth Galloway, William D. Salfiel, lecturer with the Chautauqua and Judge Marcus A. Kavanagh, who also appears on the Chautauqua program.

The occasion of the trip was the result of the reference made to Howells as an author, by Mr. Salfiel, in his lecture upon "The Spirit of American Literature," as given on the Friday morning program of the Chautauqua. At the Howells home, which is located about five miles west of Xenia on the Bellbrook pike, Dr. Galloway gave the history of this prominent old-time family during their residence in Greene county, the account containing numerous unwritten points of interest, as given to Dr. Galloway by the late Joseph A. Howells, a brother of William D. Howells.

Joseph Howells was formerly associated with the Ashtabula Sentinel as editor, and for many years a member of the State Board of Wilberforce University. At this time, which was about 15 years ago, Mr. Howells made frequent visits to this city in connection with his duties and is well remembered here.

The Howells family moved to their home near this city from Hamilton, Ohio, over 60 years ago, and Mr. Howells, was at that time associated with William D. Fairchild, former editor and proprietor of the Xenia Torchlight.

The pioneer life which was experienced by the settlers in this section at that time is told graphically by Mr. Howells in one of his famous books "The New Leaf Mill," the scene of which was laid about the farmhouse which still stands on a plot near this city.

BEAUTY CHATS

CLASSES OF FOOD
Someone said that food has recently become fashionable. A few years ago no one spoke of what she ate—it wasn't considered a polite topic. But nowadays we have come into the habit of discussing proteins and carbohydrates and especially vitamins, or vitamins as they are sometimes called. These last are particularly fashionable. They are in the new dictionaries; therefore they are an official part of our language.

The old-fashioned and the dippant are apt to scoff and say, "Oh, well, next year we will call a vegetable a vegetable and not 85 per cent water and the rest protein and mineral. A cabbage by any other name will be as nourishing." But I hope for the sake of those who wish to reduce or to gain weight or to improve their health, that the craze for taking food scientifically will last a little longer.

Consider what your body is made of:

1. Protein, 18 percent
2. Fat, 16 percent
3. Carbohydrate, 1 percent
4. Mineral matter, 5 per cent
5. Water, 60 percent
6. Vitamins

These vitamins are vital substances necessary for growth. We know that they exist and that with out them we starve to death even though we were to fill ourselves with food. Without knowing exactly what they are, we even know where they are found in greatest quantities—that is, in spinach and the coating of grains, in rich milk etc. Is food any less enjoyable because we know its chemical elements? Why not know which foods are healthiest for us?

Farne.—Have the hair dresser do it for you, so it will be arranged to admit wearing a hat, then follow this method yourself.

R. H. H.—Massage the chest and arms each night with cocoa butter which will nourish the tissues.

Elizabeth.—You should weigh 125 pounds. Massage the face with a good cream, which will fill out the cheeks and in doing this you will remove that sagging about the mouth.

Essie.—If the texture of the hair is good it will not injure it to have the permanent wave.

Mrs. J.—The formula for the hair tonic requires so much space to print, and was printed in the column so recently, that I must ask you to send an addressed stamped envelope for it.

Mrs. X.—You should weigh another ten pounds. To appear taller choose such styles as will give you long, straight lines in your dresses. The one-piece frock does this.

G. N.—All the articles you mention are patented and I do not know what they contain.

Discouraged.—You need a hair tonic that has some oil in it instead of the one you are using. Do not shampoo so frequently until the condition is improved. Massage the scalp every day, unless you can have some professional treatments. The kid curlers will not injure the hair.

Appointment of a receiver for Foster B. Houston and all the Houston interests with the exception of the trust estates of Leon H. Houston and Edwin E. Houston, is expected to be made soon, as the result of a suit filed in the federal court at Dayton recently.

If the petition is granted, all of the various properties which were owned and managed by Foster B. Houston will be turned over to a receiver for liquidation and creditors will be paid whatever remains as salvage from the various Houston interests. In the meantime the state banking department, which closed the Houston bank at South Charleston last October, is waiting on a decision from Judge Geiger in Clark county common pleas court to construe the wills of Leon H. Houston and Edwin E. Houston, brought by the trustees under the will. Judge Geiger's decision is expected to determine whether the assets of the estate can legally be used in paying off the obligations of the Houston bank.

STOLEN AUTOS ARE RECOVERED WHEN ARREST IS MADE

With the arrest of Lawrence Grumes, Columbus, by the Columbus police department, ten sedan automobiles, stolen during the past year, have been recovered through the efforts of Patrolman C. E. Gross of the auto recovery bureau of the Dayton police department.

One of the stolen machines was a Ford Sedan belonging to Karl Bull, of Cedarville. The machine was stolen in Dayton several weeks ago, shortly after it had been purchased. It was equipped with a number of extra accessories.

The machine was insured with a local theft insurance agency but without waiting for the company to pay the claim, Mr. Bull purchased another car. He was called to Dayton several days ago to identify the machine recovered there, which was found to be his property.

Three other of the machines recovered were taken from Dayton while the rest were stolen in Columbus. Grumes has confessed his part in the theft.

A CHICKEN DINNER

FOR SUNDAY
Beefsteak Dinners, Shore Dinners and all other delicious dinners wax and wane in popularity but the good old Chicken Dinner is always with us. The chicken dinner is an especial favorite for Sunday. The young housekeeper may not have the following "old standbys" in her recipe file as yet, and may welcome my directions for them.

Fricassee Chicken
Delmonico Potatoes
Green Peas
Simple Fruit Salad

Coffee
Fricassee Chicken: Cut up a cleaned fowl and put the pieces in a saucepan with 4 tablespoons of beef drippings; let them fry in this grease until slightly brown on both sides, but take care that they do not burn. Then add enough boiling water to cover, 1 tablespoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, and a bouquet of herbs; let simmer until tender (for a chicken this will be about 1-2 hours; for a fowl it will take about 3 hours). Make a sauce in another saucepan by melting 2 tablespoons of butter, adding 4 tablespoons of flour and mixing until smooth, then adding 2 cups of the hot liquid from the chicken saucepan and salt and pepper to suit taste. At dinner time arrange either split biscuit or toasted bread on a large meat platter put the pieces of chicken on this, and pour over all the hot sauce. Or, if you do not care to serve the chicken on toast or biscuit, you can arrange it on the platter, pour the sauce over it and surround it with a border of hot, cooked rice.

Delmonico Potatoes: Make a white sauce by melting 3 tablespoons of butter in a saucepan, adding 3 tablespoons of flour and mixing until smooth, then adding 2 cups of sweet milk, 3-4 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Now also add to the hot sauce 1-4 cup of either grated Parmesan cheese or finely minced mild American cheese and 3 cups of cold cooked white potatoes which have been diced. Turn this mixture into a buttered baking dish and sprinkle another 1-4 cup of the cheese over the top; dot with bits of butter and brown in a quick oven.

Simple Fruit Salad: 4 bananas cut into slices, 4 cups of diced apple, 1 cup of celery cut small and 1 cup of chopped walnuts. Mix these ingredients well together and cover them with the following dressings:

Dressing for Simple Fruit Salad: Beat 2 eggs well and put them into a small saucepan; add to them 1-2 teaspoon salt, a dash of cayenne, 1 heaping tablespoon granulated sugar, 1-2 teaspoon prepared mustard (if liked), 3 tablespoons of vinegar and 3 tablespoons of thick sour cream; let boil until very thick then cool, chill and pour it over the salad just before serving.

Bride: Answer: Send for my printed up article on "What Every Preserver Closet Should Have." This page of recipes includes directions for the "Three-Day" Cucumber Pickles, which you desire.

CHAPTER 100.
When I told Keith he had also grown older, he smiled rather sadly and replied:

"I have had a great deal to bear since you left, Vera. Things have been so unsettled at home. Your leaving as you did, has caused me to be constantly on my guard to prevent gossip."

I longed to say, "But Margaret is happy now that I am gone," but I bit my lip to keep back the words. Keith went on:

"You made it harder for me than you know, Vera. My fear for you, my despair over Margaret, all have seemed unbearable. I want you now that I have seen you again, even more than I did before. I will go back and see what I can do; what I can arrange for us, to make you happy—and not break Margaret's heart."

"Has it never occurred to you, Keith, that a wife should have a greater claim than a sister? Would Margaret, if she had a husband, treat him as you did me, for your sake?"

I did not wait for an answer, but called Mrs. Aldrich in and we three talked until time for supper. Keith's train left at 8 o'clock, so he remained to supper with us, and afterward I walked to the station with him, leaning on his arm.

He and Mrs. Aldrich had seemed to take to each other at once. They talked very entertainingly during the meal and I listened, my heart full. Keith had given me no assurance that he would make a home for me, yet I felt that in some way we would come together. It was the first time I had felt any surety in this respect and it affected me strangely.

A peace such as I had not experienced for years came over me.

"All will come right now," I whispered as Keith took me in his arms before he boarded the train, and promised to be back in just a week. I walked on air back to the cottage.

Mrs. Aldrich was waiting for me and until far into the night we talked of Keith his visit and what it might mean in my life.

"I liked your husband dear," Mrs. Aldrich said after a time. "He is something as I had imagined him, yet different—more strength of character than I supposed."

"He has strength of character enough," I smiled rather bitterly.

"Yes, but I mean the right kind of strength. It isn't every man—even though he has seen himself in the wrong, will admit it to two women. He realizes now that he should have provided you with a home or remained unmarried until he could. Then I rather think his sister's actions may have helped rather than hindered your case. She has evidently acted very selfishly, not considering him at all."

"She never did consider him! It was always self, self all the time!" I broke in passionately.

"It comforted me that Mrs. Aldrich had seen Margaret in her true character and from what Keith, not I, had said. I wanted very much that she should approve of me, of what I had done. I cared more for her good opinion than for that of anyone in the world. She had taken me in on faith, had given me a home, love and trust, when I most needed them."

"He will find a way now, dear child, but you must be patient. A man cannot deal with such a situation in a moment. It is a good suggestion he made."

"What—which one?" I had forgotten everything irrelevant or that I considered so because of the greater fact—my husband's desire for me, his love.

"To travel a bit and then come back to your own home. It would prevent gossip and make it easier for you all. But there is time enough to discuss all that when you see him next week. Try and rest, you look very tired, and—very happy."

"I am both!" I threw my arms about her neck and kissed her fondly.

"I love you next to him!" I told her as she returned my caress.

"And I love you, my dear child, I never had a daughter of my own. I feel that in you I have found one. I shall love to be a daughter to you, to take a daughter's place as far as I can. My own mother doesn't need me. She has the others, I was always a bit in the way at home. I love them, and I know they love me, but they do not need me."

"And I do! Don't you see dear, that all things work together for good? We have found each other, and you have not lost that one so dear to you—your husband."

"I hope not, but I mustn't be too sure. Some of the old fear crept back. He was to be under Margaret's influence while he decided what we, he would do in the future."

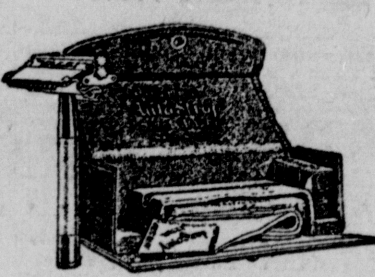

Tomorrow—A Week of Unrest.
